

What does MFL look like at Archbishop Hutton's?

French is taught consistently and competently throughout KS2. The children enjoy the language and are able to communicate effectively. Alongside the development of language and communication skills, children are able to explore different aspects of French culture to broaden their interest and curiosity. French is taught as a whole class in mixed ability groups. All children are encouraged to take part in lessons and are given the opportunity to embed their learning in other subject areas. For example, the register is taken in French and conversations about lunch and points earned are communicated in French.

Why is MFL an important part of our curriculum?

Learning a foreign language is a way to open up our pupils' understanding of the world. It should allow pupils to develop their curiosity and equip children for a future in a globally connected workplace.

We teach MFL because we recognise the importance of encouraging an interest in learning another language. Introducing young learners to a rich language environment in a way that is enjoyable and fun, helps them to engage fully. The intent is to help learners understand cultural differences both here and in other countries. A language rich curriculum also develops pupils' speaking and listening skills across the curriculum.

What do our children think about MFL at Archbishop Hutton's?

"I can ask someone their name, age and how they are feeling in French."

"I like all the songs and watching clips about French children."

"I can count up to 20 in French and tell you what the weather is like today."

"We learnt the names of the Chinese New Year animals in French—it was fun."

What is our vision for MFL at Archbishop Hutton's?

We believe that learning another language is a crucial part of the children's education, which allows them to build self-confidence as well as developing their communication skills. In our modern society, children now have the ability to communicate very easily with others from around the world. Good language teaching, equips them with the skills and confidence to be able to do this.

Our children are encouraged to be inquisitive about the world, in a learning environment that allows children to feel confident about taking risks and developing informed opinions about the world around them.
